An aerial photograph of a tropical resort. On the left, there is a large swimming pool with a curved edge, surrounded by lounge chairs and umbrellas. A sandy beach is visible between the pool and the water. In the foreground, there are several thatched-roof buildings, likely villas or bungalows, surrounded by lush greenery. A long wooden pier extends from the shore into the clear, turquoise water, leading to a series of overwater bungalows with thatched roofs. The water is exceptionally clear, showing the sandy bottom and some coral reefs.
